CONCLUSIONS

- the greenhouse warming issue will be with us for a long time
- our scientific understanding of the problem is still rudimentary
- voluntary actions to curb greenhouse gas emissions can begin immediately
- before mandatory actions can be taken, there is need for rational debate, consensus building