Greenhouse warming likely to develop slowly and persist for centuries

- global population is increasing
- per capita energy consumption is increasing
- CO_2 has a long atmospheric residence time
- the buildup of greenhouse gases is cumulative
- curbs will require decades to implement
- some of present sinks will may become saturated