
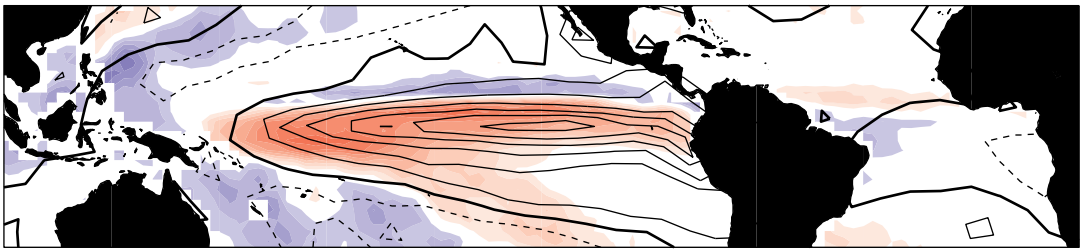

Figure 21. Sea surface temperature anomalies (contour interval 0.2°C) and ocean rainfall anomalies during a typical warm episode of the ENSO cycle. Enhanced rainfall, indicated by the red shading, is observed over the region of above-normal sea surface temperature, and reduced rainfall, indicated by the blue shading, is observed throughout much of the surrounding region and over the tropical Atlantic adjacent to Northeast Brazil.